Wilson has letters which, he says, were written by Moen, acknowledging the relationship, and calling him "dear son."
These letters Mr. Wilson produced to-day. Ee says he is the injured one, as instead of being rearred as a gentleman and brought up smid all the luxuries which his father's wealth could purchase, he was cast adrift and rearred as a peasant boy without education and without any of the refinements of life which would have been his had his cruel parent done right. The widow of Jenas Wilson, who had the truncing up of Wilson, and as prearranged, was to bring him up in ignorance, when appealed to by Wilson to come forward when secessary and testify in his behalf relative to sense with him, had for so many years secessary and testify in his benalf relative to what she with him, had for so many years keyn a secret, begged of him not to comrel her to do it, and in the fremry of her gratef at the bere possibility of the secret being divulged, became insane. In that pittable condition she at present is residing in Thompson, Coan, where in her mad ravings she is coaselessly muttering imprecations upon the late which made her a living ite.

Wosanster, Mass., Dec. I.—The announcement from Providence this evening that. Doc' Wilson had lifted the veil from the great Mean mystery caused a tremendous sentation. The bulletin boards were surrounded far into the middle of the crewis, who drank in the brief sketch in osen-mouthed wonder. The millionaire manufacturer was at traver meeting when the amouncement reached this city, and the reporters gathered at the door of the Union Oburch to waying him when he came forth. One of them showed Mr. Moon a copy of a Providence paner contaming the story and proceeded to interview him on the subset, but he would say nothing aside from the statement that "Doc's" story was a lie. With difficulty be escaped the reporters, and went home. A renormer called upon him there at 9 o'clock. His san Fhil came to the door with him, for he mover grees to the door show. He was as cool and collected as through he had been called to the door on a matter of business of the simplest kind. When saked about the statement made by Wilson 10-day, that he was his father.

DE PULTON IRIUMPHS.

A special trusiness meeting was held last night in the Centennial Baptist Church, Brooklyn, for the purpose of taking final action on the controversy between the Bev. Dr. Faiton. the paster and Descens E. J. Graff, E. M. Young, Frank Mapes, and Martin Wilkinson, in re-rence to the Knight-Dennington controverst. For the purpose of stepping "the ava-lanch of notoriety," to which Dr. Fulton obsected, three trusted officers of the church guarded the doors leading to the lecture room thus preventing the entrance of any but regula memiers. So well did they perform their duty that only two outsiders ran the blockade, and before the proceedings tegrat their presence was discovered and they had to withdraw. HER GOSSIPY LADY'S MAID

COSE RAPR'S COSTRIBUTION TO THE COLIN CAMPBELL SCANDAL

o Mark Evidence Against Lady Colle Loxpox, Dec. 1.- The hearing of the Campbeil divorce suit was resumed to-day. Bose Baer, formerly lady's maid to the plaintiff, testified for the defence. She said the Duke of Mariborough frequently visited Lady Colin Campbell. He usually came in the afternoon, and was shown to the drawing room. Witness never saw any familiarity between Lord Colin lampleti and Mary Watson. Lady Colin had instructed the witness not to leave letters to her. Some of the letters witness carried to plaintiff the latter burned, others she placed in a box under her ted. In June, 1982, Lady Colin, who was at the time in the company of Lady Niles, called the witness. Lady Niles told the witness she had blackened her mistress's character and must leave, and that if she did not go at once the police would be called to put her out. Lady Colin gave her £10, four only being due as wages, and told the witness to tell the servants in explanation of her departure that her father was ill and she was going home. Lady Colin added, the witness said, that she considered witness a sister and not a servant, and kissed her good-by, saying it was Lord Colin Campbell who had dismissed her.

The witness had posted letters daily to the Duke of Mariburough. She sometimes took them to his house. Lady Coin used to leave the house at 8 o'clock in the evening and re-

The counsel for the plaintiff added more presente, and Miss Baser finally almitted that the Duke of Mariborough was not at Leigh Court at Christmas. She also admitted that the statements she had made in her direct examination about hearing some one ascend the stairs after midnight one night and enter the room adjoining Lady Colin's and finding a gentleman's handkerchier in Lady Colin's room next morning and other indications that two persons had occupied it were untrue.

Nearly every one of Miss Baer's admissions under cross-examination provoked excitement and sensation, in view of their damaging effect upon Lord Colin's side of the case, which was largely bu'lt up on what she had previously reported in writing.

The cross-examination of Miss Baer was continued at great length. Being niked to confirm her statement that the Duke of Mariborough and Lady Colin sat together like a pair of lovers on a seat in the Paddington gillway station, the witness simply said she was sure there was a seat on the platform. Being referred to her statement to the man servant O'Neill that Lady Colin bassed every night at Leigh Court with the Duke of Mariborough, the witness and she retoid O'Neill any such thing. She had simply told him "she thought so." Replying to an interrogatory by the Judge, the witness had no reason to believe that they were together at other times. The Judge asked her why she had told man servant O'Neill that they were together at other times. The Judge asked her why she had told man servant for the round during the Christmas holidays of 1822. The witness answered: "That cannot be so." This contradiction caused a sensation.

After recess Miss Baer did not at once appear on the witness stand. The Judge took his said and waited five minutes, when he sent for the round during the Christmas holidays of 1822. The witness answered: "That cannot be so." This contradiction caused a sensation.

After recess Hiss Baer did not at once appear on the witness in the round of the more appear on the witness in the state of t

NEW YORK, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1896.

It was an Uprising of Farmers Against the Stephenk Musicon of the Witnesskies. NEW ORLEANS, Dec. L .- Mr. Newton Holmes, an old resident of West Carroll parish, gives an explanation to-day of the Witkowski difficulty. The affair, he says, is wholly personal and directed against the Witkowski family. and directed against the wincowell family, who have aroused great possilar prejudice and indignation against them by the business course they have pursued. The two Withouskie, Simon and Julius, came into West Carroll parish in 1861. They were Polish Jow pedskis, Simon and Julius, came into West Carroll parish in 1e61. They were Polish Jow peddiers. Through the marriage of Julius with a Mrs. Paves, and of Simon with her daughter, they came into possession of the Davis panatation, and established a store at Caledonia. They make advances on cross, and in this way, Mr. Hotmes says, soon obtained control over a large proportion of the property in West Carroll, which is the semilast parish in the State, and one of the poorest. The scene in West Carroll was the result of a popular wereistig on the part of the farmers of the heighborhood, who considered themselves oppressed by the system of the Witkowskin in foreclosing crop mortgages. The stories about the people being outlaws and desperandoes and about the mod bring in wait for the $1,000 tent to Witkowski were. Mr. Holmes decared, both and nonsense and a stander on the people of West Carroll. The latter were simply tirred of the methods of the Witkowskis and their friends and songht this mode of getting them out of the parish.

Gov. McEnery has issued a preclamation offering $1,000 for the arrest of the persons who murdered John McKee, Simeon Witkowsky's bookkeeper, and the colored weman who was Witkowsky acook.

A man who arrived this evening from the scene of the murder says the best people on the hills are afraid to express an equinon about it an 1 that the persons supposed to be co-cerned in the crime are publicly daring and setting a deflance law and order. He further ears that the houses on the Bouston planting were destroyed by fire on Sunday night.

This pince has belonged to Witkowski. His wagots were burnet, and his mules turned loose in the swamp. His son-in-law, Mr. Semple, who had charge of the Ashton store, narrowly escared with his life through the bark deor, when the crowd came to kill him and Witkowski, whom they had supposed had gone to Ashton.

The Brooklyn detectives have been on the lookout for Hunt over since the murder, but had no intimation that he was in that city till Toe night. Inspector Reilly was then informed that a man answering Hunt's description had been seen in the vicinity of Warren street. Yesterday morning the detectives found that John Monohan, a plumber, living in a flat at 553, was a relative of Hunt's. They watched the place for some time, hoping he would come out. Finalty Inspector Reilly decided on a master stroke, and collecting about a dozen detectives he scattered them about the building in places convenient to stop Hunt if he should attempt At 5% o'clock Inspector Reilly and Detective

Connor entered the house and walked up to the Monohan floor and into the kitchen. There in a chair, looking very sad, sat Hunt, talking with Monohan and his two sons. The Inspector told Hunt he wanted him and Hunt immedi-ately put on his coat and said he was ready. When he was asted if he knew what he was arrested for, he replied he did. He was taken when he was asked if he knew what he was arrested for, he replied he did. He was taken at once to the Brooklyn Police Headquarters. He was perfectly self-possessed. He was searched and nothing was found in his pockets.

The Inspector questioned him closely, and Hunt admitted that he shot once at Sultivan. He didn't know whether he shot twice or not. He said he was in the saloon drinking at the bar with some of his friends, when Sultivan came up, and in a sneering way began twiting at him for having been on the Island. Hunt said he told Sultivan he'd better let up on that, and then Sullivan went at him worse. He couldn't say how be came to get out his pistol and shoot at Sullivan, nor whether it was in the saloon or in the doorway. He remembered nothing about giving the pistol to Rice. Hunt said he wouldn't say any more about it till the time came.

After the shooting he went directly to Brooklyn and wandered about the city, but didn't sleep anywhere that night. He did not go to Monohan's till yesterday morning.

As soon as the news of the arrest was received at the Elizabeth street station Detectives Chrystal. Burphy and Keeley were sent over to them without any ceremony, and they opened the door for him into the Elizabeth street station at 8% o'cook. Hunt looked soter and frightened, but he tried to be cool. He is a short, chabby, little fellow, with hair almost as light as tow, and no beard except what has grown in three or four days. He was dressed in a heavy and well-worn brown overceat and a dark suit of ciothes. He has a tair of large wicked bine eyes and a knotty-looking face.
